Physical Description 1

DESCRIPTION

The house known as "Royd Grange" at 2 Royd Grange Court has substantial views to the Barwon River and Newtown. Although located on an unusual allotment, it has a large rear yard and narrow side setbacks.

The single storey Flemish bond red brick transitional Late Victorian/Queen Anne house is characterised by its picturesque hipped slate roof forms, pyramidal tower and bullnosed corrugated iron verandah that wraps around the north, east and west elevations. The form of the house is essentially of a late Victorian Italianate design, denoted by the asymmetrical arrangement of the projecting bay windows with pyramidal roofs and the octagonal two storey tower. Strapped brick chimneys with terra cotta pots adorn the roofline. Small overhangs are a feature of the eaves. The early timber framed double hung windows are arranged singularly and as bays. The timber entrance doors with sidelights are early.

A feature of the design is the bullnosed verandah. It is supported by early cast iron Ionic columns and a Flemish bond brick plinth.

Early decorative features provide the transitional nature of the design. While the iron lace verandah valances and brackets, worked timber eaves brackets and the iron ridge cresting of the tower are typically Victorian, the cream brick bands along the walls and the cream brick arches in the tower are more in accord with Queen Anne design. This house makes a significant architectural contribution to the local area.
