Statement of Significance

Last updated on - July 18, 2008

One of the most remarkable of the red brick Roman churches by the architect A A Fritsch, begun in 1913 and extended in 1937, combining Romanesque and Byzantine external features such as a wheel window and a dome surmounting the unusually tall tower, but distinguished most of all by the remarkable decorative scheme over the whole of the barrel-vaulted interior in the form of paintings of mediocre quality but in overwhelming profusion, executed by the Italian Francesco Floreani in 1931-4 and after the extension of the building.
