Outstanding example of species

A very large example of this rare tree in cultivation. This is the largest and best example of two specimens in Eastern Park. Another specimen occurs at Caloola, Sunbury. The tree is characterised by large cones, hooked extensions which form in clusters. The scales are small and more angular similar to H. lusitanica. This tree has an attractive form with a large spreading canopy.

Located north-east of Director's Residence, near outer ring road.
