Why is it Significant?

Erected in 1911, the house is associated with a burst of residential development in prestigious Park Street in the early twentieth century, being one of several houses erected on part of a large site which was occupied by the workshops and showroom of the Gillbrook Pottery for almost fifty years. Description

The house at 833 Park Street, Brunswick is a single-storey, roughcast-rendered symmetrical brick bungalow. A low pitched bellcote roof, clad with terracotta tiles and penetrated by tapered roughcast rendered chimneys extends down over roughcast-rendered verandah piers. Timber-framed french doors open onto the front verandah and are screened by wrought iron security screen doors.

The front fence has matching roughcast-rendered brick piers and dwarf wall with wrought iron infill and gate. A single, painted brick garage with parapet and flat roof is located at the south-east corner of the property on the boundary to the street.
